

INTENTIONAL HEALING

The first, and only, skin cream in the world infused with the power of healing intention!

Magic, Myth or Science? Intentional Healing Skin Creams.

Now that science has proven that thoughts affect physical mass, that our intentions actually do affect our reality, intention-enhanced products such as my hand-crafted skin cream will become more in demand. As the Institute of Noetic Sciences and Princeton University has shown, human thought, properly focused, has the ability to affect and change physical mass.

My Aha! moment came several years ago, in 2004, after seeing photos of the different shapes water crystals made, beautiful or malformed, when positive or negative thoughts were directed at droplets of water before they were frozen.

If thoughts and intentions can influence the structure of water, and thus how we feel when we look at these water crystals, then what would happen if I prepared a small batch of skin cream, using natural ingredients, and directed my thoughts of healing, love and joy into the molecular structure of the ointment?

I set about doing this, and gathered all the necessary components. I prepared my body, mind and spirit with purifications, rituals, deep meditation and energy cultivation. As I mixed everything together, in deep concentration, I one-pointedly directed my intention into my compound, 'seeing' and 'feeling' the ecstatic emotions merging with the cream.

My secret?

The intense discipline and mind focus of my 35 years in the martial, internal and meditation arts.

To test my theory, I gathered a group of women together for a facial party. I purchased a small jar of a luxury skin cream, and put it on the table next to a jar of my skin cream, both jars without labels, under a napkin. I had each woman in turn close her eyes and first apply the expensive skin cream to the back of one hand, and then my skin cream to the back of the other hand. Each and every woman felt that her hand with the expensive skin cream had no distinct sensation, maybe a cool feeling, and the hand with my skin cream on it had a delightful sensation of warmth which penetrated deep into the layers of skin, and they all reported that they felt a blossoming of joy in their hearts.

Tens of millions of women worldwide use skin creams daily, to moisturize and nourish the skin on their faces. Millions of these women are concerned, and rightly so, about the quality of the ingredients that are used in these mass-produced formulas. Many women insist on organic, cruelty-free ingredients in their cosmetics. I've found though, in my research, that most women aren't aware that the creams and ointments they slather on their skin (which is then absorbed deep into their cells) are empty of meaning, empty of any intention at all in the manufacturing process from start to finish.

INTENTIONAL HEALING

I developed my skin creams to solve this problem, and I infuse every batch with love, compassion, calmness and vibrant health.

Through my extensive research, I've found that there is no other skin care product like mine in the world. Although the field of mind-science is growing, I am only one person doing this particular work, merging positive, healing intention into a luxurious skin cream that benefits the people who use it beyond just the effect of the ingredients, and thus my skin creams are rare and precious.

My focused intention of healing is in every jar of my Intentional Healing creams, the first and only skin cream in the world infused with the power of healing intention.

I invite you to try Intentional Healing and experience for yourself the power of my healing intention.

Please visit my website <http://cultivatechi.com/products/intention.html> for more information on how to order my intention-enhanced skin creams.

Happiness
Compassion
Health
Ecstasy

